Congressional candidates fear voting irregularities

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Congressional nomination candidates Pete Fields and Mike Mansfield are worried about potential improper voting in East St. Louis in Tuesday's primary, but candidates are taking steps to prevent it.

"I'm talking about buying of votes. I'm talking about votes being bought and sold in East St. Louis," said Fields, Madison County auditor.

"Some," said James Lewis (executive director, East St. Louis election board) is honest and I believe in the integrity of the election board. But it's obvious they are hamstrung by forces that are coming from Bellville," Fields said.

"Yes, I'm worried," Mansfield said; he is on leave as retiring Rep. Melvin Price's chief aide. "We already heard about money coming down from 'The Hill,' and the other day I heard a rumor about 40 jobs."

"People don't commit (voting irregularities) without incentives and that's what money. It takes a person with money. That's not me and it's not Pete Fields," Mansfield said.

"That's absolutely ridiculous," said Dave Wagner, Springfield campaign manager for Costello, St. Clair County Board chairman. Costello has raised the largest campaign fund of all the 21st Congressional District candidates.

"The only (election impropriety) in East St. Louis in recent years is the $10,000 Pete Fields poured into it (the congressional primary) two years ago — and it didn't get him anything," Wagner said.

Mansfield has a complaint before the Federal Election Commission asking it to investigate the transfer of $19,000 from Fields' 1986 campaign fund to East St. Louis Mayor Carl Offield. Offield's campaign acknowledged that $10,000 obtained from riverfront development bonds was used to pay poll watchers.

"Some people have to do desperate things to get their names in the paper," said Fields. "He keeps rehashing the same old thing. To be honest, I thought Mansfield did anything wrong."

"I don't think Fields intentionally did anything wrong. But this stuff in East St. Louis has got to be stopped. Pete gave a third of his money to East St. Louis. If I gave away that kind of money, I would — and as an auditor you'd think Pete would — at least get some kind of receipt," Mansfield said.

U.S. Attorney Frederick J. Hess announced plans Thursday to have assistant U.S. attorneys to file complaints early day to take

"make this a fair election."

"They will give us the benefit of a trained observer in the event election fraud is attempted," Hess said. "But it is important that the candidates get their people credentialed by the election board so they can do the job."

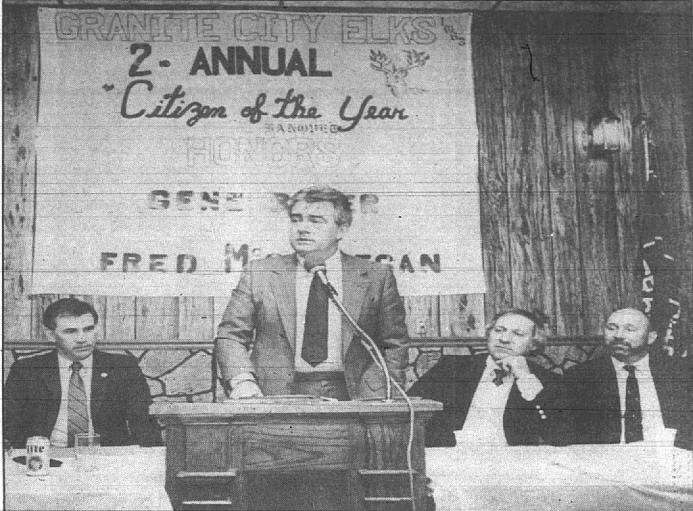

Fields and Mansfield both plan to have poll watchers in East St. Louis, but both doubt they will have enough watchers to be effective in preventing campaign literature for Fields.

"What worries me most are people who might be registered in 19 different precincts," Mansfield said. "There's just not a lot you can do."

"I'm trying to have enough people there to bring some semblance of control," Fields said. "But there aren't enough resources in the city to guarantee a fair election."

"They're desperate and need to get their names in the paper," said Wagner. "I'm sure elections in East St. Louis are scrutinized more closely than anywhere else in the 21st District. The elections are fair and that is a fact borne out by all of the federal, state and local agencies in every one of their investigations."

Mansfield said, "If the election is close, if it's a matter of a few votes, so what, then you are going to see everything hit the fan. We can't have an election decided by vote fraud. That's not what America is about."

School to close with bishop's permission

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

Parents at Granite City's four Roman Catholic churches are proceeding with a plan to close two of the churches and the Sacred Heart-St. Joseph School, the Rev. William Fisherkeller said Friday.

Bishop Daniel Ryan is expected to give final approval to the plan this week, Fisherkeller said.

Representatives of the city's four parishes have formed a special task force and are holding weekly meetings to discuss the plan, which can only be implemented with the bishop's permission, Fisherkeller said. He is "90 percent sure" Ryan will approve the plan.

Under the plan, which was developed by the pastors and the Rev. Robert A. Alton, Deaconry, St. Margaret Mary and St. Joseph churches would be closed, and parishes would be divided between the remaining churches, St. Elizabeth and Sacred Heart.

The St. Joseph property — including the church, school, convent and rectory — would be sold by the Diocese of Springfield, the administrative body that owns the property. Students at the Sacred Heart-St. Joseph School would attend either St. Elizabeth, St. Margaret Mary, School, 1900 St. Clair Avenue. The latter school would be renamed, Fisherkeller said.

While some parents of students at the schools objected to the plan initially, Fisherkeller said their concerns are being dealt with.

"The parents' main concern was transportation of their children," he said. "We've addressed that at the meetings. Parents will be placed in areas that will allow us to offer a much better program for the children. There will be a better curriculum, a more productive learning environment and more program for the children."

Dwindling students and financial as well as a lack of personnel, have been cited as reasons for the proposed consolidations.

Venice board dismisses teachers as precaution

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

VENICE — The Board of Education will send honor discharge notices to 20 teachers this week as a safeguard against possible funding cuts. The letter, the teachers, Board President Wilbert Glasper states that the measure is necessary "because of the uncertainty of continued federal and/or state funding."

If the district receives the funding it is expecting, all of the teachers would be rehired, Superintendent Charles McCaskey said. Attorney Mike Bilkrey said that if the district does not receive funding cuts and not all of the teachers can be rehired, the teachers would be hired back in order of seniority.

The district sends out honorable dismissal letters every year, according to Bilkrey. The letters must be received by the teachers at least 60 days before the last day of classes. District officials won't know how much federal or state funding they will be receiving until summer, Bilkrey said.

Those being sent letters are Shirley Blasingame, Ann Mulligan, Mary Mulligan, Ruth Marie Welsh, Linda Sverd, Mary M. Shaw, Barbara Bailey, Ruth Rankin, Peter Ponce, Mary Dona Shaffner, Betty Cunningham, Russell Al J. DeLay, Ramona Glasper, Linda Johardar, Laverne Rice, Raymond Mosby, Peggy Tapacot, Leonard Arona and Lori Edwards.

Party leader, prosecutor, mayor in precinct contests

By Bill Winter
Staff writer

Republican candidates for precinct committee positions are almost non-existent in the Quad Cities in Tuesday's congressional election, but fiercely-contested committee races have developed among Democrats.

Madison County Democratic Chairman Mac Warfield is being challenged in Granite City Precinct 2 by Alberto R. Valenzuela, while Madison Mayor John Bellcoff is opposed by Maxine Costoff in Venice 9. Mrs. Costoff is the widow of Christ Costoff, who preceded Warfield as county party chairman.

Mike Sasyk, Bellcoff's predecessor in Venice 9, faces Eleanor L. Armour for Venice Precinct 6 committee man.

State's Attorney Dick Allen, in a close race for renomination in Madison County, also has an opponent in his home precinct, Granite City 17 — Barbara H. H. Harman.

Alderman J. Partney and Kathie Williams are opponents in Granite City 8. Alderman Shirley S. Verrik is a candidate in Granite City 20 against Jim "Red" Worthen.

There are many other two-way contests among Democrats but four precinct candidates, Arthur Asadorian, Allen H. Colins, Steven H. Davis and Michael B. Edwards, are competing in Granite City 35, while Granite City 38 has three contenders —

Dewey Melton, Alderman Judith J. Whittaker and James H. "Jim" Harman.

Alderman J. Partney and Kathie Williams are opponents in Granite City 8. Alderman Shirley S. Verrik is a candidate in Granite City 20 against Jim "Red" Worthen.

most of the precincts have lone committeeman candidates for election on Tuesday. No one filed in Chouteau 4.

Outnumbered heavily in this community, Republicans have a smaller party structure. There are no GOP candidates in Chouteau (Mid-Hartford area) or Venice (Township/Madison-Venice area).

Wilmer A. Winter is unopposed for Republican committee man of Granite City 11. And in the Granite City Republican Party, Dale G. Hyle is running in Precinct 12 and Daniel Bruce Smith is a candidate in Precinct 33.

Candidates continue to get endorsed

GRANITE CITY — Endorsements and candidates have come to light in the waning moments of the Illinois primary.

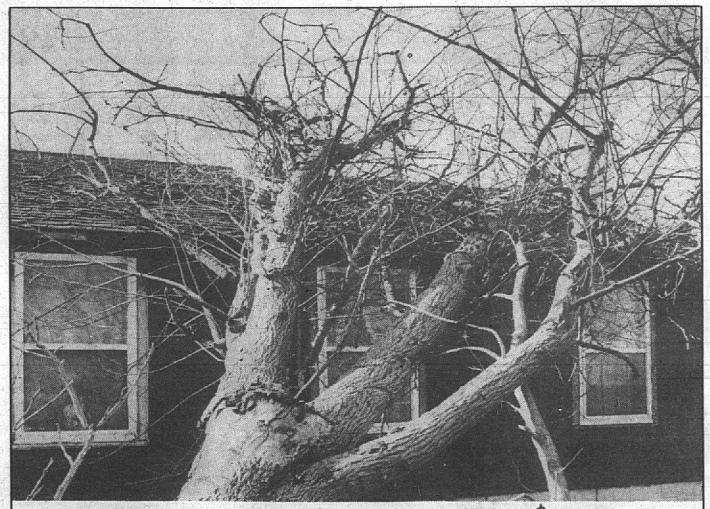

As the March 15 election nears, many announcements from Democrats regarding the Congressional nomination, and three Republicans have come forward to seek office.

On Thursday, at the Republican Lincoln Day Dinner in East Alton, it was announced that Dennis Douglas, Moro, will seek the new circuit court judgeship; Madison County Board member Horace Henke, Moro, will run for recorder of deeds; and Mark McDowell, Collinsville, will run for auditor.

For the Democrats, Madison County Treasurer Mick Henkleus has endorsed St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello for Congress. Edwardsville Township Supervisor Bob Stille urged voters to nominate Mike Mansfield, who is on leave to retiring U.S. Rep. Melvin Price.

Madison County Auditor Pete Flynn, who is running for Congress, is endorsed by Ward Alderman Jim Miller.

Madison County Board member Bill Haine is favored for state's attorney by police chief, including Madison Chief Charles Bridick. Incumbent Dick Allen is endorsed by Granite City Local 16 of the United Steelworkers of America.

Tree falls

A BRISK WIND brought down this old tree Friday afternoon in Granite City. The tree fell across the roof of a one-story frame home at 2235 14th St., near the intersection of McCambridge Avenue. Gina Crowell, 28, who lives in the house, returned from class at Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College to find the damage. No one was hurt.

96 acres annexed by Pontoon Beach

By Valerie Evenden

Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Ninety-six acres of agricultural land north and east of Arlington Heights Subdivision were annexed into the village Tuesday.

All the annexed property is scheduled for residential development with housing to be constructed on one-acre tracts.

Opposition to the annexation of 89.86 acres were Mike and Winifred Sasyk and Kelly and Shirley Dutko. Their property is directly north of the existing homes in Arlington Heights and contiguous with village boundaries.

Arlington Heights Subdivision was not annexed, but is now virtually surrounded by the lots whose boundaries were extended eastward to Illinois 157 by earlier annexation.

The second petition approved, for 5.3 acres to be included in the village, was submitted by Kelly Hogan.

The latter property, to be known as Hogan Subdivision, will be developed by Donald Hogan Kimbro, with four homes to be constructed, each on a one-acre tract.

Pontoon Beach extends into four townships — Nameoki, Chouteau, Collinsville and Edwardsville. Village Clerk Mike Sasyk said, "Part of the property annexed Tuesday is in Collinsville Township."

Only one house, east of Interstate 270 near Sand Road, in Edwardsville Township, was annexed.

Two smaller parcels of property were also annexed at Tuesday's Board of Trustees meeting.

Nearly one acre of land owned by the Pontoon Beach Public Water District at Lakeview Drive, Lake Drive and Morrison Road was annexed. The property is zoned for general business.

The request for annexation was approved at last week's meeting of the water district and was presented by V.K. Snyders, district chairman, Warren said.

A 200-foot, single-family residential lot owned by Jennifer Stevens, located across the road from the water district property on Lakeview Drive, also was annexed.

Magna will combine banks in Columbia, Dupo, Cahokia

William S. Badgley, chairman of the board of Magna Group Inc., announced on March 4 that Dupo State Savings Bank and Bank of Cahokia will be combined with Magna Bank of Columbia.

All three of these banks are allies of Magna Group.

"Many banks throughout the country, as the law permits, have begun to merge to reduce the cost of operations, which translates into savings for the total organization," Badgley said.

Dupo and Cahokia will continue to operate as full-service financial centers for their customers in those markets. This action will enable us to better serve all our customers in Columbia, Dupo and Cahokia," said David A. Vogt, president of Magna Bank.

The combined assets of Magna Bank of Columbia will be $115 million after the banks have been combined. The current directors of Dupo State Savings Bank and Bank of Cahokia will become directors of Magna Bank of Columbia.

Cencom providing election coverage

Cencom Cable Television will provide its Illinois customers with "live, up-to-the-minute updates" on the March 15 Illinois primary voting results, the company has announced.

Dave Troxel, general manager, said Cencom will begin carrying local and statewide March 15 voting results at 8 p.m. on Channel 10, the Cencom television channel. The election coverage will continue until "the primary results are in," he said.

"We have an exclusive arrangement with radio station WRYT-AM (1080 on the radio dial) for the station to provide live audio reports on the primary on Channel 10," Troxel said. "WRYT ceases its radio transmission after sundown, but the station's election coverage team will continue to transmit reports on Channel 10 throughout the night."

WRYT will provide live audio reports on Channel 10 via a telephone hook-up from the Madison County Courthouse in Edwardsville, Troxel said.

"Cencom recognizes that the Illinois primary is attracting a great deal of interest this year and we want to make sure that local citizens have an opportunity to follow the results as closely as possible," he said.

Cencom and WRYT will provide updates on primary races for the 21st Congressional District, state's attorney, coroner and Illinois presidential primary.

Troxel said the Channel 10 coverage will include live interviews with local political leaders, expert political analysts, in addition to the WRYT audio reports. Cencom will provide continual written election updates on Channel 10.

"Election night is a very exciting and important time, and we're fortunate to have a community resource like Channel 10 to involve local citizens in the elections," Troxel said.

Intense competition for Congressional and Madison County state's attorney nominations will mark the political scene Tuesday, March 15, in 36 Granite City, 12 Nameoki, 11 Venice Township and seven Chouteau precincts.

Voting hours will be 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Democrats and Republicans will elect presidential delegates and predict committeemen, as well as nominate candidates for the Nov. 8 general election. The only Solidarity Party candidate in local balloting will be Lenora B. Fulani seeking the presidency.

Granite Citians will decide whether their township should annex the Gorbe residential area, now in Nameoki Township. A proposal to do so was voted down on Johnson Road and south of Clark Avenue.

Mitchell residents and others in the unincorporated areas of Chouteau Township will vote on whether to join the Hartford Public Library District to obtain library services. The tax rate limit is 15 cents on each $100 of assessed value.

Madison Countians will decide whether to increase their Sheltered Care Home/Nursing Home tax rate cents from 2.5 cents to a cent over $100. County officials have said that, without the increase, the Sheltered Care Home will have to be closed. The home provides patients with medical and nursing services and personal care.

With Vice President George Bush edging toward clinching the Republican nomination, the campaign will be competing in the Illinois "candidate beauty contest" along with Sen. Bob Dole, Pat Robertson, U.S. Rep. Jack F. Kemp, Pete DuBois and George H. W. Bush. In addition, prospective delegates are running on behalf of Bush, Dole, Robertson and Kemp, with three delegates to be elected.

Democratic presidential contenders on the Illinois ballot are U.S. Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, Jesse L. Jackson, Michael S. Dukakis, Al Gore, Dick Gephardt, Howard H. Baker, Bob Dole and Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr.

Five Democratic convention delegates will be chosen from this congressional district. Can-candidates on the ballot have allegiance to Sen. Tom Jackson, Gephart Hart, Babbitt and uncommitted.

Each party also will pick alternate delegates.

With U.S. Rep. Melvin Price planning to retire after 44 years in Congress, spirited competition for the 21st District Democratic nomination has developed between Madison County Auditor Steve Maragis, St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry F. Costello and Mike Mansfield, now on leave as Senate's chief aide. Robert H. "Bob" Gaffner, Greenville, is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

State's Attorney Dick Allen, Granite City, is seeking renomination, opposed in the Democratic primary by William R. "Bill" Haine, Alton, who was endorsed by the party's Central Committee. A former state's attorney, Don Weber, Carpenter rural area, is seeking the Republican nomination.

Unopposed in the primary are State Rep. Sam W. Wolf, Granite City, and Circuit Clerk Willard V. Portell, D-Collinsville.

Democratic nomination results in Madison County are:

Reelected on Feb. 22, Incumbent Ronald P. "Runk" Lucas, Maryville, Daniel R. Donohoo, Wood River, and Terry "Bones" Allan, Collingsville.

Incumbent Fred Bathon, Madison, H. Jack Frandsen, Alhambra, and Michael R. Myler, Collingsville.

Coroner — Incumbent Dallas M. Burke, Alton, and Bob Thomas, Granite City.

Madison County Board candidates for Democratic nomination are: Incumbent Herbert "Junior" Milton, Granite City, unopposed; District 23, Incumbent Don Garrett, Madison, and Stephen Isenburg, Nameoki Township, and District 24, Incumbent Frank Dutko, Madison, and Edward J. Dohna, Madison.

Candidates for the Democratic nomination for the Illinois Supreme Court are Horace L. Calvo, Glen Carbon, Carl H. Becker, Red Bud, Robert S. Hill, Benton, and Charles J. Kolker, East St. Louis. The lone Republican candidate is Thomas M. Welch, Collingsville.

For the Jones vacancy as Fifth Appellate District judge, the only Republican candidate is William C. Evers III, Collinsville. Democratic nomination candidates are Al Andreas, "Andy" Mataesian, Granite City, Robert Mays, Alton, and Robert H. Howerton, Carterville.

The Karmi appellate seat is sought by one Republican, Robert M. Keenan Jr., Mt. Carmel, and three Democrats: Charles W. "Bill" Chapman, Edwardsburg, Stephen M. Kerman, Belleville, and Lehman "Lee" Levy, D-Collinsville.

Krause, Mt. Vernon.

A new appellate judge position is the goal of Philip J. Harick, D-Troy, and Donald Lowery, R-Golconda. A second new appellate seat is sought by Richard P. Goldenhersh, D-Belleville, and J. Thomas Long, R-Godfrey.

The 3rd Circuit's Johnson circuit judgeship is sought by Paul Riley, D-Edwardsville, now serving by appointment.

A new circuit judge position has no ballot candidates but write-in campaigns are being waged by Charles R. Jr., D-Davidson, and Elizabeth Levy, D-Collinsville.

Candidates differ on 'light rail' plan

By David Rocke
P-RJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — The four Democratic candidates for Congress in the 21st District have similar views on most pressing issues of the day, a written question unanswered by the candidates shows.

On foreign policy, defense, and most domestic and local issues, the four — St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello, Madison County Auditor Mike Fields, Mike Mansfield, former top aide to retiring Rep. Mel Price, and Madison lawyer Steve Maragides — were largely in agreement.

The only clear difference among the candidates were on a constitutional amendment banning abortions, which Costello supports but his opponents and agency "workfare" programs, which Maragides opposes; and the proposed Metro Link light rail system, supported only by Costello.

A survey was mailed last month to the four candidates.

While Costello supports a constitutional amendment banning abortions, he said he doesn't oppose abortion rights, which is the only option to save a mother's life. Mansfield wrote that he would support a constitutional convention to decide on such an amendment.

All of the candidates except Maragides support some sort of "workfare" program under which welfare recipients might be required to work to receive benefits. But none of them would require mothers with young children to work.

Fields wrote that "we would have to make sure that our best and finest resources, our children, are properly prepared for."

Costello noted that such a program should include day care for children of working mothers, and educational and training programs for participants. "The cycle of welfare dependency can be broken only by encouraging welfare recipients to work, without discouraging family unity," he wrote.

Mansfield also said he would support a program that included training, and said: "A mother should be required to work."

Costello was the only candidate to give unequalled support to the proposed Metro Link project that would run from East St. Louis to Lambert Field in St. Louis County.

Costello: "The system is our best hope for dealing with the growing problems of traffic congestion and inadequate bridge capacity across the Mississippi River."

Mansfield considers the light rail car system "a St. Louis project" because only one station would be located in Illinois. If he said no, while he does not support the project, he would not oppose efforts by Missouri lawmakers to fund it.

Fields said he would cut funding for defense as part of a nationwide effort to combat the budget deficit and wrote, "I do not think it is a particularly good use of federal dollars."

Maragides does not consider Metro Link a high-priority item and thinks the system would be underutilized.

Highlights of the candidates' views on other issues covered by the survey follow:

PERIODIC GULF

Fields: "The current reflagging of ships in the Persian Gulf is a tactic, avoiding a strategy. We have no clear plan in the Gulf now and it is long past time we developed one."

Mansfield: "We cannot allow a fanatical country like Iran to dominate the United States and threaten the world oil market."

Maragides: "It is necessary to maintain the freedom of the seas in a civilized world. Even if the oil being探ected is not used in the United States, it is necessary for the U.S. to protect it."

SMOKING BAN

Mansfield: "I would not support a ban on flights longer than two hours."

ACID RAIN

Costello: "I would advocate the use of scrubbers since both the Midwest and the West use the widespread use of our vast coal resources for energy production and would not lead to an increased dependence on foreign oil."

SDI

Fields: "Most of the best scientific minds in this nation have said the (strategic defense initiative) system will not work and as a nation we cannot afford to spend our precious resources on such foolhardy endeavors."

Mansfield: "My present position toward SDI is skeptical. If I receive further scientific information revising the prospects of the success of SDI, I would be open-minded in regard to modifying my position."

DEFENSE SPENDING

Costello: "It is clear that the defense procurement process is badly in need of reform and that there needs to be a shift in emphasis in our defense program to conventional forces. By spending better, we can avoid real increases in spending, but it may be difficult to significantly reduce spending further."

Fields: "You can't grow money at defense, but at the same time you can't cut the heart out of the real programs we need to defend our country. More is not better, less is not better, only better is better."

Mansfield: "Defense must be cut to effectively reduce the deficit. I would reduce the number of troops and bases overseas and scrap the M-102 missile and A-10 fighter projects."

Maragides: "I favor neither an increase nor a decrease of the present amount of defense spending. If a comprehensive budget is written, and it is ratified, I would favor a reduction in defense spending."

HOUSING NEEDS

Costello: "While it is clear that public housing has not been a good answer to the housing needs of low-income people, there must be a larger federal role in addressing this problem. I will support increased federal funding that will lead to a public-private partnership to meet our housing needs."

Maragides: "I do not agree with this trend, but in view of the present budget deficit, I am not inclined to oppose it."

SCOTT AIR BASE

Fields: "Commercial use (of Scott) might jeopardize the military mission of the base and preclude possible more lucrative commercial uses asssociated with it in the future. I also question the environmental impact commercial traffic might have."

Maragides: "I support the construction of a separate civilian airport at Columbia-Waterloo."

President Reagan addresses Legion Auxiliary members

Dorothy Hinson and Norma Hillmer, both from Madison, attended the annual American Legion Auxiliary Awareness Assembly in Washington, D.C., on Feb. 28 through March 2 and the National Assembly Council Seminar in Boston, Va., from March 2 through 4.

During the legislative briefing, Auxiliary members were addressed by President Ronald Reagan.

Members visited with congressional leaders and were briefed on matters such as AIDS developments, hospice as a growing health care concept and U.S.-Soviet relations.

The American Legion Auxiliary is a 1 million member patriotic organization, the largest in the world.

Hinson and Hillmer are members of Venice-Madison Unit 307, Venice.

Saturday workshops

Five additional noncredit workshops have been added to the Saturday Experience offered at the Granite City Campus to accommodate enrollment requests.

Those sessions add include:

March 19 and 26: More Clowning; April 9 and 16: Beginning Calligraphy; April 23 and 30: Bookbinding.

Most of the workshops meet from two to three hours.

A fifth session on photography darkrooms, has been added and increased at GCC already closed because of heavy registration.

Costello was the only candi-

"We expect other workshops to be held before the first session in March or April," said Valerie L. Thaxton, dean of students. "As we are forced to close these sessions because of enrollment requests, we will make every effort to add sessions."

For information about these and other Saturday Experience workshops, persons may call 931-0600.

Q. I have a very simple question: How much money does a family need to have in a savings account?
A. That is a simple question with no simple answer because each individual's situation will mandate a different amount. However, there are some questions you can ask yourself, or your banker, to determine the right answer. For example, if your goal is to own your own home within, say, three years, the required down payment could be a major factor in determining the amount you should be depositing, each month, in your savings account. If determining how much should be put in a savings account for emergencies, this can also vary. Again, the answer depends on your situation. A general rule of thumb is that a savings account should be maintained at no less than three months living costs. Whether or not this is right for you might be something you can talk over with your banker.

Nursing director says county shelter home needs tax raise

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — The Madison County Supervised Care Home for persons who no longer are able to function independently at home probably will close if the 2½ cent tax rate limit increase fails to pass in the March 15 election.

Laura Blotvogel, director of nursing at the county-operated shelter home, addressed the Board of Trustees Tuesday night, urging support for the referendum.

The measure seeks voter approval for an increase of 2½ cents per $100 assessed valuation, she said. The present tax levied for the shelter home, which opened in 1965, is 2½ cents per $100 valuation. The county nursing home also receives support from this tax.

An application for a tax rate change would lead to a tax rise of $3.45 annually for a family owning a $46,000 home assessed at one-third of value.

Blotvogel said there are 60 residents at the shelter home and about 13 of these are private-paying residents who can afford to pay the $825 monthly rate.

Free glaucoma test by Venice Lions Thursday

The Lions of Illinois Foundation glaucoma screening bus will stop at the Venice Center parking lot on Broadway, near the Venice Public Library, on Thursday, March 17, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For more information, call Venice Lions Club. The president is Greg Katana and the immediate past president is Greene Jacks.

The glaucoma screening bus is open free to the public.

Everyone, especially senior citizens, is being encouraged to be tested.

Glaucoma is an eye disease which could eventually cause blindness, a spokesman said.

12 seek patrolman position in Madison

Twelve applicants beat the March 1 deadline to file for possible selection as a patrolman with the Madison Police Department, said Bruce Trott, secretary of the Madison Board of Police Commissioners.

The board is considering all eligibility lists for the position, which will become vacant after someone is promoted to the lieutenantcy vacated last month by the retirement of William C. Pappa.

The board will meet Monday night, March 14, to discuss testing procedures for both the patrolman and lieutenant positions. Trott said the board will probably complete an eligibility list within three months.

On page 36 we advertised a C2110-A M/F/20 stereo cassette player with auto-stop (Model no. C2110-V) on sale for 19.99. Due to an error in the original photo, the case was shown with speakers. Speakers are not included with the cassette deck.

We regret any inconvenience this may cause you.

Venture

The remaining 47 contribute about $470 each through pensions or Public Aid payments made monthly by the State of Illinois.

"For many of these people their money has run out and they are now at the mercy of the state," Blotvogel said.

The average age of the residents is 70 and each resident is obligated to pay his or her own way, depending on the resident's financial situation.

For example, figures show it costs $76 a day to house a juvenile, $38 a day to keep a prisoner and $11.50 a day to board a pet at an area pet center, she said. Based on a 30-day month, the $470 monthly payment received from the state averages less than $16 a day per person.

Meals, housekeeping, laundry, maintenance, personal hygiene and medication monitoring are handled by 35 employees who part-time or work three shifts. The employees are union members, Blotvogel said.

Absentee voting ends Monday

In-person absentee voting will be available in the Madison County Clerk's office, Edwardsville, until 5 p.m. March 14.

County Clerk Evelyn Bowles is encouraging Madison County voters to exercise their rights and obligations if they qualify.

"The state law provides for absentee voting prior to the election; however, certain requirements must be met before a person can properly vote by absentee ballot," she said.

To qualify for an absentee ballot, a person must be a properly registered voter who is unable to vote in person at his or her polling place on election day for one of the following reasons:

•Expect to be absent from the community on election day.

•Appointed to serve as an election judge in a precinct outside of the home precinct.

•Be physically incapacitated.

•Be observing a religious holiday.

•Be acting in an official capacity as an election official.

In addition, nursing home residents and permanently physically incapacitated persons may qualify to vote absentee.

Questions regarding absentee voting or voting in general should be directed to the County Clerk's Office, 692-6290.

Garrett, Isenbarg vie in District 23

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

Two candidates, both with public service records, are seeking the Democratic nomination in Madison County Board District 23 in the March 15 primary.

Don E. Garrett, 54, 401 West Second St., Madison, executive director of Don Garrett Associates, a promotions, consultation and public relations firm, is the incumbent.

Stephen F. Isenbarg, 43, 2179 Northland Drive, Webster in the Granite City School District and Nameoki Township's tax collector, is opposing Garrett.

Garrett is seeking his second four-year term on the County Board. He was a Madison alderman from 1975 until December 1986 and was a member of the Madison Board of Education from 1977 to 1987.

Isenbarg is asked the question: "Should County Board members hold more than one office?" Garrett said:

"I do not believe that any elected official should hold more than one office. My motivation as an alderman and my decision not to run again for the School Board reflect this."

"He who serves more than one God deserves no God," Garrett quoted. "I think, and it has been my experience, that no one individual can give each position the full attention it deserves. Conflict can easily arise between the two offices. Such conflicts will inevitably result in one office suffering at the expense of the other."

Representative government should have an aide a variety of different options as possible. Restricting officeholders to one office would greatly add to the number of people holding office and, therefore, offer greater variety," Garrett said.

Isenbarg was elected Nameoki Township tax collector in the April 1985 election, to start a four-year term Jan. 1, 1986.

Due to the resignation of the former collector on Feb. 28, 1985, Isenbarg was appointed April 8, 1985, to the post.

A County Board member should be allowed to hold more than one office if there is no conflict of interest, if he or she is elected by the voters and if it is lawful in counties under 300,000 population, of which Madison County is one, Isenbarg said.

"My elected office of township collector is administrative and sets the policy in the collection and distribution annually of over $3 million in tax dollars," he said.

The county executive form of government is crucial to administrative issue. This form of county government places more power in the hands of one countywide elected official, rather than the majority of 29 members in the county commission.

"Without the proper checks and balances, such as a veto and veto override, I could not support the concept. The voters should decide this issue and I'll abide by their decision," Isenbarg said.

Garrett said, "County government is still government at the local level and it should remain that way. The county executive form minimizes the participation of the individual board member and puts all power in the hands of the executive at the expense of the locally-elected official."

Artist's Guild to meet

The Granite City Artist's Guild will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 15, at Central Christian Church, 2000 North Main Road (Granite City Public Library Branch Library entrance).

The group will discuss Expressionism as opposed to Realism in general artist's works.

Joyce Bennington, Guild member, will share her collection of prints.

"What this means is that the powerful bureaucracy that would result from the executive form would overwhelm that individual board member and minimize his ability to represent his constituents and to serve the citizens close local representation in government."

Garrett said the chief election issues are job and economic development for District 23.

"During my first term I have increased the number of jobs in county government held by residents in my district and helped to provide a million dollars to A. Smith Corp., now a thriving industry."

"The term I shall continue to increase the number of jobs in the county government available to residents and increase the number of people engaged in job training and re-training through the county Job Training Program."

"Also, I shall concentrate on economic development in the Venice area, particularly on the Venice waterfront, and be involved in efforts to modernize the McKinley Bridge," Garrett said.

Isenbarg, who holds a bachelor of science degree in social science, with emphasis in government and sociology, said he has become involved in the decision-making that affects the lives and well-being of people in the district.

"County and regional cooperation is necessary to solve today's complex problems. A county board member should act today to avoid problems rather than react tomorrow when they are upon us."

"I will bring to the office new ideas, dedication and hard work to improve the quality of life and economic growth of the Tri-City area in particular, and Madison County in general."

Isenbarg added, "Madison County is running out of land for garbage. The board should immediately begin to look for sites for development of programs, such as trash-to-energy and trash-to-cash, among others to avoid a near-future crisis."

"We need relief from the high water-table by participating with the Corps of Engineers and others in the 'deep well' concept; the board should be directly involved to protect residents against ground water seepage and air contamination."

The board should seek alternatives to rate increases; increase its commitment to improve the economy by providing incentives to decide whether the county should become involved in the light-rail system; look into a countywide health department and work toward to expand medical traffic flow to and from St. Louis."

Garrett said a main issue is the 23rd being "badly gerrymandered district."

Garrett, considering causes the district to cross too many units of local government, too many people of widely differing social and economic backgrounds. All of this makes it difficult for the board member to represent the district as a whole.

"During this term, when the County Board has the chance to re-district, I shall change the makeup of the district so that the people in Granite City and Nameoki are represented by someone who lives in that area, and the people in the Venice, Madison and Eagle Park areas are represented by someone from those areas. This is only fair and it is the way it was intended," Garrett said.

Garrett has a daughter, Joyce, 17. He attended Washington University and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, studying criminal justice and government. He has held political office for 15 years and has 25 years of "political and community activism."

Isenbarg and his wife, Jane, also a teacher, are the parents of Jeffrey, 18, and Amy, 13.

He is a graduate of Illinois State University and has worked for the Illinois Department of Way's Budget and Allocations Committee and the Maryville School PTA. He is a member of Nameoki United Methodist Church.

2 seek write-in votes

Two candidates are seeking write-in votes next Tuesday for the Democratic nomination for a new circuit judge position in the Third Circuit Court. They are Associate Judge Charles Romani Jr., 49, Glen Carbon, and Elizabeth Levy, 39, Collinsville, a lawyer.

Such votes are to be written on the ballot containing one's precinct block.

A former Bond County state's attorney for six years and a former Madison County assistant state's attorney for two years, Romani has served as an appointed judge since Jan. 14, 1983.

His write-in campaign was endorsed by the Madison County Democratic Central Committee in December 1987. Romani was elected to the 20th Circuit Court in December 1987 of Lawrence Hartman, Glen Carbon, city attorney for Madison and Venice and the only candidate to file for the 10 years. No name will appear on the ballot.

As a judge, Romani has presided over both civil and criminal cases.

He is a graduate of the Washington University law school, worked for the St. Louis Legal Aid Society for four years and has been in private practice for the past 10 years.

She has taught business law at Bellville Area College and family law at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

No Republicans have announced write-in campaigns.

For court-related positions, unopposed 1988 primary candidates include:

Paul E. Riley, D-Edwardsville, for a circuit judge vacancy. Riley, who currently holds the circuit judgeship by appointment, became an associate judge in September 1985 after long experience as a Madison County public defender.

Philip J. Rarick, D-Troy, a Madison County circuit judge, and Donald Lower, R-Golconda, a Pope County circuit judge, candidates for a new Fifth Appellate District judgeship in the Southern Illinois region.

Richard Goldenhersh, D-Belleville, a circuit judge of the 20th Circuit, and J. Thomas R-Godfrey, an attorney, candidates for another new appellate judgeship in the Fifth District.

Willard "Butch" Portell, D-Belleville, cleared his eighth consecutive four-year term in the office.

Bill Haine is not telling the truth in the State's Attorney's race because the truth hurts. Here is the TRUTH about the DICK ALLEN record:

TRUTH: Between 1979 and 1985, the statewide conviction rate overall was 89%. DICK ALLEN'S CONVICTION RATE IS 93.5%.

TRUTH: In the last three years, criminals in Madison County have been sentenced to almost 2,500 years in prison, in addition to FIVE LIFE SENTENCES.

TRUTH: The assistant State's Attorneys in the Felony Division alone have well over 150 years of prosecutorial experience.

TRUTH: Bill Haine has NEVER prosecuted a criminal case.

The citizens of Madison County don't need a State's Attorney that makes unrealistic campaign promises and they don't need one that misrepresents the facts in order to erode the fine record of the current State's Attorney. They need one who will continue to serve ALL of the citizens of Madison County.

"Switching Channels" nifty little comedy

SWITCHING CHANNELS—Romantic comedy set in the world of wireless journalism, with Burt Reynolds as an eccentric cable TV news director and Kathleen Turner playing an outrageously attractive woman willing to get her stories on the air.

Rated PG. (Language)

Harry Hamer
"Switching Channels" (9½ stars) is an attempt to update two classic film comedies about the world of journalism: "The Front Page" from 1931 and "His Girl Friday" from 1940. It is a "His Girl Friday" from 1981. "Friday" was a remake of the original "Front Page," and it was redone again in 1974 using the original title, starring Jack Lemmon after Matthau and Carol Burnett.

Add to that the fact that the current comedy hit "Broadcast News" has been nominated for an Oscar as Best Picture and it's all talk about a less-than-savory time to release "Switching Channels."

The pairing of Burt Reynolds and Kathleen Turner as the ex-husband and wife who must work together on a cable television news network brings good laughs, if not authentic landmark comedy.

Of the two, Turner fares better, turning her acidic-reporter-in-love character into a colorful, full, brash and very comedic lady who will wear you out with her machismo. She is a very athletic performer in "Switching Channels," a fact that is all the more notable because she was in her first pregnancy when the movie was shot.

But Reynolds does almost as well playing Sully, her still in-love ex-husband who is the network's new director. It is evident that the is an important role for Reynolds, who started the film three years into production after Michael Caine dropped out. He puts forth his most determined and effective comedy in years.

"Switching Channels" is a noble little effort that succeeds as a slightly above-average comedy with some hilarious moments.

Frank Hunter

Burt Reynolds returns to fast-talking film fare in "Switching Channels" (3½ stars). It's time for rejoining, considering some of the atrocious stuff that has come his way in recent years.

KATHLEEN TURNER is a TV anchorwoman and Burt Reynolds is her network boss and ex-husband who tries to keep her from leaving the business in "Switching Channels."

On most counts, this is a pretty nifty little update of the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur romantic comedies "The Front Page" and "His Girl Friday," which lampooned the world of press politics in the 1930s.

But while newspaper types get their lumps, the sharp focus of "Switching Channels" is on competitive reporters working for a cable television network.

The pace is frantic and flamboyantly absurd; there is absolutely nothing subtle about this picture. And breezy Chicago talker Kathleen Turner is in the order of the day, with Reynolds making a welcome return to light comedy.

Rather than a crusty newspaper editor, Reynolds is a zany cable television news director hungry for headlines.

His ex-wife (Kathleen Turner) works for him, an aggressive and determined woman who is comfortable rushing out to cover rapes, murders and puffed features as she is putting city hall politicians on the press. She is a formidable pair in the film, which is set in a television newsroom turned upside down when Turner brings around a lover and potential husband to the office.

He is a rich, vain, sexy, rather athletic equipment tycoon and no match for Reynolds when it comes to convincing women in badminton Reynolds pulls out all the stops in seeming to it that Reeve is still in love with his former wife.

The film is a generally solid farce and full of wise-cracking Reynolds will find him very much at home here.

Frank Hunter

Richard Pryor looks bewildered and performs at half-speed in "Moving" (1½ stars), a domestic comedy about a family of New Yorkers to Boise, Idaho.

Complications for Pryor's character in "Moving" include a militant, crazy neighbor played by Randy Quaid; a moving company run by human scum who won't leave his boyfriend; and the woman he tried to drive his prized possession, a turbo Saab, from New Jersey to Idaho. The driver is played hilariously by Don Garry, the host of "Saturday Night Live," who has made the Circus Lady a household name.

There are plenty of good opportunities for "Moving" for Pryor to do what he does best: his patented style of wide-eyed, panicked movie comedy rarely hardly ever comes off. It all means "Moving" is a deadly slow comedy that has very few real laughs.

Frank Hunter

For most people, vacating one house for another is about as much fun as two hours with the oral surgeon.

Cross-country moves are even worse news for the characters played by Richard Pryor in "Moving" (2½ stars), relocation to Boise, Idaho, is tantamount to being buried alive.

That's not a drift of this fairly bright comedy in which Pryor plays to plans to drive west from New Jersey with his family and finds himself tormented by frustrations heaped on his head by fools.

There is some vulgarity in the dialogue but the sight gags get some laughs, particularly Pryor delivering an adroit performance as the beleaguered transplanted engineer.

Beverly Todd is suitable as Pryor's wife with a French cook as their teen-age daughter who won't leave her boyfriend. Raphael and Ishmael Harris are twin sons who dual identity helps win a local track meet.

War films shelling home video market

"Hamburger Hill" followed close on the heels of "Platoon" in popularity and critical approval from critics and Vietnam vets alike. Like "Platoon," it focused on personalities as well as bloodshed and sacrifice.

"Hamburger Hill" is a vivid story of a squad of soldiers who fight in one of the most brutal battles of the Vietnam War as they attempt to take Hill 397.

After 10 days in a preceding assault, it was called Hamburger Hill. Based on veteran Jim Carabatos' experiences (and translated to the film's script), the film creates an almost documentary effect as it details Operation Apache Snow, which began on May 10, 1969, with troops of the famed 101st Airborne Division.

Neither the characters nor the audience is expected to know why this hill was so important. That's what makes the carnage that follows so heart-wrenching and want a pound of flesh, like mobster Jack Meehan (Alan Bates), a slimy undertaker who will exchange a passport only for another death. Former freedom fighter, now a man of the cloth, the Rev. Don Corleone (Harrison Ford) witnesses the killing and provides Fallon with his first chance to renounce bloodshed and to experience innocence. That's another in the line of Don Costa's, blind niece Anna (Sammi Davis the teen-age daughter in "Hope and Glory"). Anna senses Fallon's goodness and they both develop a close relationship.

With the mob and former IRA friends after him, Fallon brings climactic violence to his family and church but ultimately saves his life.

Although Rourke and Bates are fascinating to watch in their roles, obvious symbolism and a soap opera plot make "Hamburger Hill" a less-than-great movie.

Virginia Vision, rated R for violence, language, adult situations, 104 mins. in color, VHS/Beta stereo.

Jane Fonda's exercise tapes have become a cult classic and rentals ever since their inception. Joining her library of titles is a special limited edition "light exercise" segment called "Fonda's Up and Down," that will be available to distributors and retailers for only six weeks starting this week.

Originally designed as a special program for the San Francisco 49ers, the tape is reasonably priced and offers two consumer rebates with proof of purchase. Although not part of the Jane Fonda Fitness series, it is an Irish brogue in the intriguing suspense thriller "A Prayer For The Dying." Based on Jack Higgins' novel, Rourke plays Martin Fallon, sickened by the random innocent victim violence, who wants to pull out for the United States.

But Fallon finds too many

Although the battle scenes are spectacular, the at-ease scenes suffer from too-literary soliloquies and artificial dialogue.

Despite the gore, the film is a good movie to show the grit and grimness of jungle warfare and the personal conflicts they endure. Vestron Video, $19.95, violence, language, nudity, 104 mins., color, VHS/Beta stereo.

Mickey Rourke continued to refine his unshaven, rumpled characterizations adding, in this, his most fully developed film, an Irish brogue in the intriguing suspense thriller "A Prayer For The Dying." Based on Jack Higgins' novel, Rourke plays Martin Fallon, sickened by the random innocent victim violence, who wants to pull out for the United States.

All-conference teams named

Ten Warriors received all-Southwestern Conference honors in results announced this week.

State qualifier Brent Davis (112 pounds) and three others were named to the first team in balloting done by the conference coaches. Joining Davis on the first team were Scottie (109 pounds), Bryan Pritchett (126) and Terry Stanley (185).

Second-team selections from Granite City were Todd Hutchinson (98), Rich Fenoglio (130), Dan Grayson (155), Chris Hoffman (167) and Dale Hutson (275). Jerold Moss (132) was an honorable mention selection.

Kim Pawlak, another sophomore for the Warriors, earned second-team honors. The sharp-shooting guard averaged 15.3 points a game, good for 15th in the area and sixth in the SWC. She was third in the area with most in the conference and placed her fourth in the area. Pawlak also shot .724 from the free-throw line, best in the SSWC, fourth in the area.

Senior Wendy Knollman was also a second-team selection. The Warrior point guard led the conference in assists (160), 7.0 per game, and steals (33), 4.0 per game.

Hutchinson, a sophomore, finished at 98-6, including a championship at the holiday tournament. Fenoglio, a senior, was 20-8 and advanced to state. Grayson, a junior, was 18-6. Hoffman, just a sophomore, was 14-13 and advanced to the sectional. Stanley was 16-11.

Hutchinson, a sophomore, finished at 98-6, including a championship at the holiday tournament. Fenoglio, a senior, was 20-8 and advanced to state. Grayson, a junior, was 18-6. Hoffman, just a sophomore, was 14-13 and advanced to the sectional. Stanley was 16-11.

The Warriors had the most representatives on the all-conference team. The four first-teamers were also high for the conference. Granite City had a 15-9-1 dual meet record.

Girls basketball
Jennifer Cavaness was a first-team all-conference selection as a sophomore.

The 6-1 center finished the season averaging 17.5 points per game, third in the conference and sixth in the area. Cavaness also had 10.9 rebounds, leading the conference in that category and finishing third in the area.

Boys basketball
It was hardly a season to write home about, it's true, but the Warriors had only one player center Kevin Sanders, named to the all-conference boys team.

Sander was a sophomore and his selection, was one of the better rebounders in the area but missed the post-season with a knee injury. The Warriors were 4-21 this year.

Granite City finished at 98-6, including a championship at the holiday tournament. Fenoglio, a senior, was 20-8 and advanced to state. Grayson, a junior, was 18-6. Hoffman, just a sophomore, was 14-13 and advanced to the sectional. Stanley was 16-11.

Law doesn't insure downtown stadium

Gov. John Ashcroft signed into law a measure creating a St. Louis Regional Sports Authority, but the move does not guarantee construction of a new downtown stadium.

Ashcroft signed the legislation Tuesday but warned he would withhold state funding for the stadium if $4 million a year until a commitment is made to bring a National Football League franchise to St. Louis.

Like the city, St. Louis city and county also will pay $4 million a year for the stadium.

But a firm commitment for another team to replace the Cardinals is not over yet. While Bidwill has announced will move to Phoenix, is only one of several issues Ashcroft wants decided before he will support the use of state funds for the project.

Ashcroft said he also wants guarantees:

"Voters in St. Louis city and county will approve funding for the stadium. County Executive Gene McNary has said he would seek an increase in the hotel/motel tax to provide the county's $4 million-a-year share. But city officials have not yet identified a source of city money."

The benefits to the state resulting from a new stadium are not clear cut, he said. Some outside legislators argued against using state money for the project. State money that would be appropriated to the sports authority now goes into the general fund.

"The stadium will be properly managed. Brent Butler of the General Assembly's Legislative Reference Bureau said the sports law does not specify who will manage the stadium. He said the sports authority commission could manage it directly or contract with an outside manager. Butler drafted the legislation.

The legislation, setting up the authority, which was sponsored by state Rep. Anthony Ribando, D-St. Louis, initially was passed in St. Louis. However, after it became clear that Bidwill was going to move the team, the measure then became an attempt to attract another team.

The sports authority would be governed by an 11-member commission.

Social notes

Thomas family hosts surprise

Jenny Thomas, 550 Flemming Ave., was the guest of honor at a surprise dinner party Feb. 28 hosted by her family to celebrate her 61st birthday.

Attending were: her husband, Robert Thomas; daughters, Mac Irvin, Dale, III; three aunts, Freda Rice, Nashville, Ill., Fay Bourland, Bellville, Ill.; and Thelma Lafoon, Gorville, Ill.; brother, Eddie Lee Farnell and his wife, Barbara; Manni Verne; and cousin, Bill Ashmore, his wife, Joyce, and daughter, Shawna, Christopher.

Other relatives included children, Ralph Thomas Jr. and Ralph Thomas, III; Madison; Mike Thomas, and wife, Marilyn; and daughters, Michelle, Cindy, Steven, Tina, Barbara, and his daughter, Denise Blake, and her husband, Rich, and their daughters, Tonya and Holly, Madison; and Donna Aebell and her son, John, Madison.

After dinner, gifts were opened. Over the weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas drove Southern Illinois relatives to their homes, then visited other friends and relatives there. ***

Wayne McDowell, 804 East Main of Banks Road, was honored Feb. 28 in an over-the-hill party. The theme was carried throughout the house and included a birthday cake with 40 black roses that centered the buffet table.

Out-of-town guests included his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McDowell and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Klemm, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pogue, Fredericktown, Mo.; Nancy Glass and Jim Fleeg, both of Ste. Genevieve, Mo.; and Fred and Linda and Terry Cardwell, both of St. Louis.

Local guests attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Colbert; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kelly and daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Worley and sons, Steve and Mark; Wallace C. W. Martin; Carol Martin; and Maxine Duniphan. ***

Emily Jones, 638 Barkley Ave., is home from St. Elizabeth Medical Center after undergoing tests there.

Homemakers begin membership drive

The Madison County Homemakers Extension Association held its Kick-Off Membership Luncheon on Feb. 22 in Edwardsburg.

The theme was "HEA, Something to Quack About."

"HEA has so much to offer that the members are going to be 'quacking' about advantages to be gained such as: ideas on better homemaking, exchange ideas between different generations, learning self-confidence, diversified programs, plus a variety of many more," said Jeannenne Goodman, public information chairman.

Viola Hueber, Madison County membership chairman, presented and introduced Sarah Bequette, president of Madison

Francis Brie, 25A Wanda Drive, is home from Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, after undergoing surgery the second time in two months. His sister-in-law, Clarice Frie, 23B Wanda Drive, was also released from Barnes last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip (Helen) Hickam, 628 East Chain of Rocks Road, are the grandparents of a baby girl born to their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David (Teresa) White, 2123 Harrison.

The baby was born March 4 at Anderson Hospital, Maryville, Shreveport, La., 9 pounds, 4 ounces, and has been named Stephanie Marie. She is the couple's first child, the first granddaughter for the Hickam's and the first great-granddaughter of Pearl Turner. ***

Jerry Costello, a Democratic congressional candidate running in the March 5 election was at the Pontoon Beach Inn at 10 a.m. brunch at the Chouteau Town Civic Center March 5.

After a brief outline of his goals, Costello answered questions posed by the audience. Questions ranged from what his views were on Social Security and the so-called "notch gap babies" to school budgets and funds generated by the Illinois Lottery. ***

Brownies from Troop 323, Mitchell School, conducted a craft-in, an overnight stay Feb. 27 at Chouteau Town Civic Center, 906 N. Thornapple Drive.

Activities included crafts and skills. A lesson in cooking skills and food preparation was taught by Dona Critt. First aid instruction was given by Judy Besserman. Painting was under way.

Lincoln Day crowd belongs to Bush

By Jack C. Ventimiglia
Executive editor

BETHALTO — The Lincoln Day Dinner crowd belonged to Vice President George Bush.

Others, including Elizabeth Dole, who spoke for her husband, Sen. Bob Dole, did not receive applause and cheer Thursday, but when Bush bounded onto the platform the crowd of about 1,200 rose to greet him with a standing ovation.

In the background, the theme from "Rocky" played, but it was anything but a rocky night for the Republican Party's front-runner. With his closest opponent, Dole, cutting a sickly figure, standing and speculation building that Dole would drop from the race, Bush launched into a can for party unity.

The small but vocal contingent of Dole supporters cheered when Bush said that no matter who wins the party's nomination, all Republicans should back the nominee.

Bush then repeated his anti-protectionism strategy, saying he would not allow it. He said farmers would be the first hurt if trade embargoes were enacted, as some have suggested.

"Food should not be used as a foreign policy weapon," Bush said. "President Carter's grain embargo against the Soviet Union continues to hurt American farmers."

He brought cheers when he said education should be a national priority.

"I want to be the education president. This is the United States of America and we should be number one in education," he said.

Bush drew an "amen" from a man in the front row after calling for voluntary silent prayer in school. He said the United States should pray and Congress open with prayer.

Then, concerning prayer and Congress, Bush added, "With all respect, they need it."

Among Rep. Dennis Gahagan on hand were Rep. Bruce 3rd Ward Alderman Brett Hanke and Darrell Harbison, a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Both declined free video tapes featuring a campaign pitch by Jack Kemp, who had dropped out of the race earlier in the day. Rep. Peter Schaffer, who had planned to be a Kemp delegate.

Harbison said the same tapes, which a man at the dinner was handing out from a shopping bag to anyone who'd take them, had been going for $15 each last week.

Other Republicans appearing with Bush included Gov. James Thompson, Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar, state Sen. Frank Watson, and 21st Congressional District hopeful Bob Gaffner.

Gaffner was cheered when he announced his ran one of six in the House earlier Thursday by the Republican Party's National Committee. He said he could not predict which Democrat would be his opponent, but said he expected it to be a close race.

Bush gave a plug to Gaffner, saying, "He's finally going to replace Mel Price in Congress."

Jackson to make Venice stop Monday

By Valerie Evenden

VENICE — Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson will make a short stopover Monday morning in Venice, it was announced Thursday night.

Jackson and his staff on board two campaign buses will travel along Broadway and stop outside the Venice Recreation Center, where Brule is staying, Monday, said Toni Perrin, a Jackson delegate and coordinator of the candidate's itinerary in this area.

Jackson, who came from a strong showing in Southern states, Jackson will address supporters at a rally at 7 p.m. today (Sunday) at East St. Louis High School. Hundreds are expected.

Jackson will remain in this area overnight Sunday, stopping in Venice on his way to Alton High School where a rally is planned. Perrin said.

"I hope everyone will come out and line Broadway all the way to the recreation center," the Rev. John Henry Williams, director of the Alton-Madison Jesse Jackson for President Committee, said Thursday.

10 police chiefs endorse Haine

Ten police chiefs on Tuesday endorsed William R. Haine of Alton for Democratic nomination for Madison County state's attorney.

Haine is challenging Dick Allen, the incumbent in Tuesday's primary election. Haine announced the endorsements at a news conference in Edwardsville.

"I'm happy to see the faith these gentlemen have placed in me and I am very aware of the courage it took to go on record," Haine said.

The endorsement came in a letter to a county voters saying in part: "We believe that the state's attorney will best be served with a competent administrator such as Bill Haine."

"For the sake of our officers, for the sake of our families and for the overall well-being of our communities, we believe a change has to be made," the letter said.

Allegations leveled in state's attorney race

By Jack C. Ventimiglia

GRANITE CITY — Probation for a man originally sentenced to state prison shows State's Attorney Dick Allen fails to represent the public, charged County Board member Bill Haine, Alton.

Allen is challenging Allen, 62, Granite City, for the state's attorney post in the March 15 Democratic primary. Haine blamed Allen for the drug delivery conviction being changed to possession and a lighter sentence.

Haine said Allen allowed Joseph Brule, Granite City, to get a "slap on the wrist" for a conviction for delivering 30 grams of the drug, methamphetamine, to a woman from whom Brule received $300. The delivery was witnessed by Agent Michael Nichols of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southern Illinois.

Allen said a problem in the way Brule's defense was handled became evident after the conviction. When he asked for the conviction to be changed, Allen said.

"There's nothing unusual about this," Allen said.

Haine said, "In treating this matter the way he did, Dick Allen thumbed his nose at the state laws as to controlled drugs."

Allen said he agreed to change the charge because Brule's attorney, John Gitchoff, Granite City, had not interviewed witnesses who could have testified Allen was not guilty and knew what was being delivered.

In an affidavit filed Feb. 18, 1986, Gitchoff stated the witness for Brule "could have been subpoenaed, (but) counsel failed to do so." Counsel failed to contact and interview the other witnesses, and now recognizes he should have done so.

Brule was charged in July 1982 with delivering the drug and was sentenced in Dec. 1984 to six years in prison. The verdict was upheld in the Fifth Appellate District Court on April 25, 1985. Brule remained in jail awaiting the result of an appeal-court petition, which was filed Jan. 30, 1986.

Protection of the people of Madison County."

Haine repeated his promise to end plea-bargaining in cases involving violent crimes and home invasion. The rights of accused will be protected, but also the rights of citizens and victims," he said.

The endorsement letter was signed by chiefs Sandidge, Donald L. Caudle, Robert B. Cox, Jerome D. Wooldridge of Hartford, Ralph R. Skinner of Wood River, Clarence E. Quinley of Troy, Kenneth D. Onwile of Du Quoin, Charles J. Clark of Madison and James Nichols of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois, an area-wide drug enforcement agency.

Haine said he has the unanimous endorsement of the Alton Police Benevolent Association, a 64-member group.

Thomas wants answers from Burke

By Jack C. Ventimiglia

GRANITE CITY — Coroner candidate Bob Thomas disputes what his opponent, Coroner Dallas Burke, had to say about money received by his office.

Burke said money received for work done by his office "didn't go to me," something Thomas disputes. Burke repeated Friday that all fees were distributed to deputy coroners.

Thomas produced a copy of a check for $32 cashed March 13, 1986.

"She did not deposit this particular check in any coroner's bank account; she simply cashed it in," Burke said. "There were more than are like this. I think she owes that to the voters of Madison County to immediately release any records that she should have done so."

Brule was charged in July 1982 with delivering the drug and was sentenced in Dec. 1984 to six years in prison. The verdict was upheld in the Fifth Appellate District Court on April 25, 1985. Brule remained in jail awaiting the result of an appeal-court petition, which was filed Jan. 30, 1986.

Simon produced a copy of a check for $32 cashed March 13, 1986. The check was issued to the Illinois Department of Corrections for delivery of losses in early primaries decided to ignore Super Tuesday contests and concentrate instead on Illinois and later primaries in other states. Burke said he did not do well on his home turf despite strong competition from the Rev. Jesse Jackson and others.

On Super Tuesday, when voters in 20 states and one territory chose among the candidates, Massachusetts Gov. Michael D. Dukakis, Jackson and Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore were the Democratic winners. Dukakis won eight states, Gore won six and Jackson five.

Rep. Stephen Gephardt won only his home state of Missouri.

has," Thomas said in a press release Thursday.

Burke said the check and others were cashed and the money turned over to the deputy coroner who did it, she said. She said the practice was explained to the County Board's Finance Committee.

Finance Committee was aware of that. No one ever told me different," she said.

Because of Thomas' question, Burke earlier in the week requested clarification from the state's attorney's office. Burke repeated Friday all fees were distributed to deputy coroners.

YOU MAKE US PROUD

You are willing to work for all the people of the 21st Congressional District. You do not have the machine, and their money, to buy the election. They are pulling all the devious tactics, used in their past elections to keep the down trodden, and the NO BODIES DOWN and still NO BODIES.

We are asking our Friends and Relatives, young and old alike, has any politician asked your opinion or feelings toward matters concerning your area or invited you to their parties or passed out any gratis gifts? Are you not tired of their expensive living at your expense?

The public facts have now been printed, as to what lengths politicians will go to keep us from having a representative of our background, and mainly our choice.

The Little Guy Democrats, which are the Heart of the Party, are with you.

Burke has not been turning in a record of fees and they have not been audited, Oswald Mata, manager of financial systems for the county attorney's office, said Friday. He said the situation will be addressed in a meeting planned with Burke.

"We are definitely going to meet and we are working out a procedure. That issue will be resolved," Mata said.

Thomas said Burke did not collect some inquest fees as had been required by law. Thomas said Burke "... owes the voters a complete explanation as to why he is not doing this to try and collect inquest fees that she claims were uncollectible."

Burke said uncollected bills were turned over to the state's attorney monthly for collection, but collecting did not go well.

Simon said his decision not to run in the Super Tuesday contest does not mean he is dropping out of the race entirely and maintains he will take the lion's share of Illinois' 173 electoral delegates. But most political analysts disagree.

Simon had a dismal showing Tuesday and he now stands virtually no chance of winning the nomination, but he needs to stay in the race to please other Illinois politicians, said Robert D. Squier, a political consultant at the Communications Company.

Many Illinois politicians who have pledged their support to the senator would be shut out of the Democratic convention in Atlanta if Simon were to drop out of the race, Squier said. He said that what he is doing is something very smart. He has gotten a lot of support in his showing on Super Tuesday.
